Desert animals

Deserts are the driest places on Earth. It may seem like nothing can live in a desert. But most deserts are home to many plants and animals. Two animals that live in deserts are jerboas and oryxes.

Jerboas

Jerboas live in the deserts of Africa and Asia. They sleep underground during the day and come out at night. They don't drink water. They get moisture from the food they eat. Jerboas have long legs to keep their bodies cool. They don't walk, they hop!

Oryx

Oryxes live in the Arabian Peninsula. They dig a shallow hole to keep cool during the day and rest. They move around at night.

The oryx eats roots, herbs and fruit. They don't drink water. The oryx can cool the blood in its brain by breathing through the nose. They only sweat when the temperature reaches 46 degrees.

1. The oryx is _____ than the jerboa.
a) bigger b) biggest c) big

2. How are the jerboa and oryx alike?

- a) They both eat fruit.
b) They both get moisture from food.
c) They both sleep underground.

3. Which animal lives in the Arabian Peninsula?
